FOREWORD

Chhattisgarh infotech and biotech promotion society or CHiPS is implementing integrated e-Procurement system across all departments of the Chhattisgarh state. CHiPS is a society under Government of Chhattisgarh facilitating the implementation as the State Implementing Agency and mjunction, as the Systems Integrator, is helping CHiPS for the smooth implementation of the system.

The “Supplier Manual” is prepared for creating awareness among the suppliers of all government departments of the State who are using the integrated e-Procurement system. The manual is intended to help a seller or bidder to fully understand the bidding process workflow so that one can place a bid in the selected tender.

Several improvements have been made in the current system to overcome the difficulties to bid in a tender, compared to the earlier system.

For a registered bidder, the access to all departments is through one single login and password. To register, there is a “new user” link on the home page. Though viewing an open tender is free to all suppliers, to participate in a tender, one needs to mandatorily do the registration in the new system. Debarred or blacklisted vendors would be able to view tenders but would not be able to bid in a tender.

To use the e-Procurement system, one needs to procure (if not already procured) a digital certificate (Class II or Class III), install Java in the machine and set the language for proper functioning of the module. This has been explained in the Section 1 of the document.

Section 2 helps the reader to understand various key elements of e-procurement module

Section 3 helps to understand how to bid in a tender and is focused on the bid submission.

Section 4 helps to understand how price bid screens would look like for various tender category.

Section 5 discusses the common trouble shoot

While going through the document, one may repeatedly come across the terms “RFQ” or “NIT”. This should be considered as “tender”. Further, in places where supplier or seller is used, it should be read as “vendor”.

Currently 2 part tender has been standardized in the e-Procurement module. The first part consists of the pre-qualification and techno-commercial while the second part consists of submission of price bid.

In case you have any suggestion or idea to improve our present service, please contact our help desk at the toll free no 1800 419 9140 from 9 AM to 11 PM on weekdays or email at helpdesk.cgeproc@mjunction.in.

Section 5: Trouble Shoot

General problems -

The eProcurement solution is designed in such a way that it overcomes any type of system malfunction in normal course of activities. All types of testing (Unit, Integration, Systems and Load testing etc.), has been done during the testing phase before the User Acceptance Testing by the client, to make sure that the eProcurement system works smoothly. Regular auditing also ensures the security of the system for connectivity, data, server availability etc. In spite of all these measures, the system may get affected due to one or more of the following reasons:

1. Internet Failure
2. System Failure due to Natural Calamity
3. Major Power Failure
4. Local Problems
5. Other unforeseen events

Here, focus is more to the bid submission activity as other events such as posting new tenders may not be as critical as Bid submission, for which predefined timelines are already fixed. The decision taken will be uniformly applicable for all stakeholders of the system.

(1) Internet Failure

If the eProcurement portal is not accessible to the users because of overall Internet failure due to some major faults in the underground cables / satellites or failure due to the global Internet Service Providers, the System Administrator in consultation with the tender inviting authority may extend the scheduled time for the specific tenders with respect to the governing rules. The System Administrator will judge based on the overall effect of the failure and after confirmation from the implementing agency the bid submission dates will be automatically extended for bids that are due for submission during the failure period using the Administrative Corrigendum.

The stakeholders will get automatic mails from the system relating to the action taken.

(2) System failure due to Natural Calamity:

If the system / connectivity fails due to natural calamities like Earthquake, Tsunami, Cyclone, flood etc., the System Administrator / tender inviting authority may consider this as an emergency situation and decision for further extending the eProcurement activities will be taken in consultation with the highest authority of the implementing agency. Based on the nature of disruption of service, the bid submission time will be extended. Mail alerts from the system will also be enabled for communicating the bid submission extension.

(3) Power Failure

If the system fails due to major power failure (due to malfunction of the Power Grids/ power productivity plant / Unexpected Hardware failure / Networking issues) the System Administrator in consultation with the implementing agency may decide based on the situation and extend the time limit for bid submission as per the governing rules and regulations.

(4) Local Problems

The bidders / users may not be able to connect to the system due to local problems like internet connectivity, client system failure, browser problems etc., these kinds of activities should not be considered as the mal-functional of the e-Tendering /eProcurement system. The bidders / users are advised to make alternate arrangements to overcome these kinds of local problems and submit their bids in time without fail.

If the individual's Digital Signing Certificate is expired or not usable due to any reason related with the issuing authority and the bidder is not able to connect with the eProcurement system, this will not be considered as the system malfunction. The bidder has to rectify these kinds of problems well in time and submit the bids properly.

By analyzing traffic control, random check of data transmission etc., the system administrator monitors the system functionality in regular and periodic intervals. The server/system generated error reports are traced from the log and monitored regularly. In case, any malfunction of the system is diagnosed, that will be taken into consideration for rectification.

In case, the users convey / report any malfunction of the system, those reports are attended by the Helpdesk in the first instance. In case, the Helpdesk doesn't have a solution for the problem reported, that will be communicated to the higher level authority of the respective department. In turn, if they are not able to solve the problem, that will be brought to the notice of the core team member of the development/implementation team for further and necessary action with respect to the governing rules.

(5) Other Unforeseen events

In very few cases, due to various reasons, the law enforcing agency may issue directions for extension of bid submission end dates, which may be received by the department after the bid submission end date. The extension of bid document cannot be made by the tender inviting authority through the system. In such cases, the copy of the letter received from the Competent Authority is to be scanned and safely preserved in the system for future verifications. The System / Application administrator will facilitate the TIA (Tender Inviting Authority) to create a corrigendum through the Administrator menu. The respective Tender Inviting Authority should extend the dates by issuing appropriate corrigendum so that fair chances are provided to all stakeholders.

Specific bidding related problems

In case, the bidders are not able to submit their bids, due to malfunction of the system because of the any of the above mentioned reasons, the System Administrator in consultation with the appropriate authority will extend the bid submission date by 24/48/72 hours for all tenders which are due for bid submission after the specified date and time, automatic mails will be sent to the respective Tender Inviting Authorities/ Bidders. If the Tender Inviting Authority decides, he may extend the Bid Submission date and time in consultation with the higher authorities of the concerned departments, as required in the individual cases, and the required corrigendum can be published on the website. Automatic email communication will be sent to the bidders regarding the latest corrigendum.
